REQUIREMENTS DRAFT: (Due Tues)
- All use cases/user stories should be elaborated in sufficient detail to be implementable
- All requirements in those use cases/user stories should be verifiable/testable (more on that in Lecture)
- The document should be 'internally consistent' (more on that in Lecture)

DESIGN DRAFT: (Due Tues)
- Add textual info for each design
- Clear picture for story boards
- Include at least 2 story boards

MATT'S FEEDBACK:
- Liked: overall Eric/Chanelle's design -- most similar to UoT at Austin's site
- The two sections under the main photo should be split 2/3 on the left and a smaller 1/3 column on the right instead of a 50/50 split.
- In that right column it was brought up maybe we could include a featured YouTube video
- Possible include a Social media feed in one of the columns if room.
- The dean isn't a fan of underlining hyperlinks, so he was hoping in the style could be made to keep the links a color like blue but not be underlined.
- The top areas should have the ICS logo sort of similar to what's on the current site, we don't need the UCI logo.
- They didn't like that thin yellow bar at the top but they did like the idea of having a few links up on that right top corner like that without having the yellow bar and without the wording Donald Bren …. On the left. I don't know if you can, again, make it sort of like the Austin site but have a thin blue bar with the links at the right, then the ICS logo, with the search bar and maybe social media icons by the search bar, then the main navigation area. Also, look at what engineering has: http://engineering.uci.edu/ with the logo a search bar the social media icons and small links at the top above the main navigation bar. I think taking what Austin has and using maybe stealing the social media icons idea from engineering would work.
- For the main navigation bar use these terms/areas: 1) Research & Faculty, 2) Awards & Honors, 3) Programs, 4) Outreach, 5) Industry, 6) Alumni, 7) News & Events
- For the Top/2nd navigation area: 1) About, 2) Apply, 3) Give, 4) Directory, 5) Current Students, 6) Faculty & Staff
- They mentioned incorporating more blue colors in navigation bar or other areas
- Everyone still loves the idea of having a searchable faculty directory like Celine showed.
